Chong Wai Kuan
Speaker

Chong Wai Kuan was called to the Bar in 2000. Her professional expertise spans complex areas of law including land disputes, housing management, banking, and financial matters.

After a distinguished career in practice, she transitioned into academia, bridging legal theory with commercial reality. She is actively involved in continuing professional development, regularly conducting workshops and webinars on conveyancing practice and emerging legal issues.

Chong is a regular contributor to the Current Law Journal (CLJ), publishing scholarly articles on corporate governance, directors' duties, and company law reform. She also writes for The Edge Malaysia, offering commentary on corporate and regulatory developments affecting listed companies and board governance.

Her research and professional interests centre on corporate governance, fiduciary obligations, board oversight, and the evolving responsibilities of directors in increasingly complex regulatory and technological environments. She is currently a DBA candidate at APU.
